

PACIFIC NORTHWEST HISTORIANS GUILD

Call for Papers

Deadline: December 17, 2017

From ARMISTICE to AMAZON A Century of Transformations

The Pacific Northwest Historians Guild invites proposals for presentations at its biennial conference on March 3, 2018, at the downtown Seattle Public Library.

Everyone wishing to share their research on the history of the Pacific Northwest is welcome to submit a proposal. The conference theme is "From Armistice to Amazon: A Century of Transformations," and papers addressing the profound changes the region experienced between 1918 and 2018 are especially encouraged. Whether you're interested in immigration or aviation, radical politics or the fishing wars, agriculture or internet shopping, we look forward to hearing from you. All proposals will be considered on their merits.

Please send a 250-word summary of your proposed paper and short bio to pacificnwhistoriansguild@gmail.com by December 17, 2017.

Proposals for full panels are also welcome; the organizer should include a panel abstract along with the summaries of each paper and bios of all participants.

The Pacific Northwest Historians Guild brings together scholars concerned with the study and dissemination of regional history. Founded in November 1980, the Guild fosters teaching and appreciation of Northwest history and promotes communication among regional historians.

The conference on March 3, 2018 is free, but program participants are encouraged to become members of the Pacific Northwest Historians Guild.
